ROOSEVELT MAY SEND MORE

HAVANA, TO-DAY.

RAVAGED BY VIOLENT HURRICANES AND EVEN MORE VIOLENT POLITICAL TURMOIL, CUBA IS NOW IN

The WOMAN'S Page

Immediate Relief From Teething Pains

Anything that will relieve teething pains is indeed a godsend at this trying period. But a remedy—guaranteed non-narcotic and containing no harmful drugs whatever—is doubly welcome. Such a remedy is Baby's Own Tablets. In the past, parents, in desperation and, also because there was nothing else available, have had to use the so-called "soothing remedies" which invariably depended upon narcotics or opiates to bring relief. As every modern mother now knows, these things are harmful and often dangerous. But Baby's Own Tablets, designed by a highly qualified physician of special experience in children's troubles, act in an entirely different way. The tablets, pleasant in taste and easy to administer, immediately settle the stomach and cleanse the whole of the digestive tract. It is the upset in these organs which causes teething pains. The results are immediate and pains are often banished in a few minutes. As the tablets have also a gentle, natural laxative action they are invaluable as a general health-corrective when baby is fretful, irritable, has no appetite, vomits milk, is constipated or suffers from flatulence. They are safe for the youngest or most delicate baby, and also effective in the prescribed dosage for children's health troubles up to about seven years of age. All wise parents keep Baby's Own Tablets handy.

TAILORED BEACH STYLES

Interesting Designs
From Paris.

THE WHITE DUCK SUIT.

There is no limit to the originality of Chanel, who has just launched a new series of pyjamas and sun-bath gowns for the "plages" of the world. Both styles are most interesting, but should neither appeal, she suggests a white duck tailored suit with a double-breasted jacket, which is ideal. It is worn with a little duck hat simply ornamented by a white organdie cravat, the forehead part of the crown.

There is another tailored suit in pale pink chantrel with patch pockets set above and below a jacket girl by a black patent leather belt studded with gems like rubies and emeralds. This is worn with a white and black patterned foulard muffler.

Pyjama Suits.

Pyjama suits not only look practical in jersey cloth, but really charming and feminine. In most models trousers are fairly wide, and when in navy or black, tops form colour contrasts. This idea may be altered to all-navy or all-black for double-breasted high-backed wool-knit jersey blouses that are sleeveless and moulded to the figure under belts. In one instance a colour contrast is achieved through pale blue for one of these sleeveless tops, which is designed to cross over at the back above the black jersey pyjamas.

New Accessories.

A red bandana handkerchief is an addition, and covers the sun-back opening, or it may be used as a girdle. Leather belts studded with jewels likewise appear with these summer beach styles, the wool-knit tops of which finish a short distance beneath the waist.

Beige jersey cloth with pressed trouser seams and cone-shaped pockets is another type that shows a tuck-in blouse of the jersey brazer strapped across the back.

Another type of wide-legged sun-back pyjama is in red and white striped linen, the stripes being worked closely together across the body in a criss-cross movement which follows the lines of the body up towards the shoulders and below the waist on to the thighs. A large shady "oolie" hat of plain red linen completes this admirable model.

Coming Winter Fashions

Colours And Materials.

LATEST FROM PARIS

The latest news from Paris gives in advance patterns of materials and colours—some of which will be selected by famous fashion designers for next Autumn and Winter.

Dark colours are to be worn. Here is a list:—Dark natural greys (cold). Dark beige, dark moles; dark nigger. Dark blue with a definite greyish tinge. Black with white or grey speckles. There is a new dark currant brown, a prunelle and a dark terra cotta.

Brick reds and copper browns are shown and also Virginian tobacco brown and a little moss green.

Woolen fabrics for coats and suits are nearly all hairy—not smooth-surfaced in this particular collection.

Many are ribbed—both wide and narrow ribs. A number of bouclé fabrics are seen. And there are many mixtures, i.e., deep terra cotta and deep mole; dark grey and blue; two tones to natural grey or dark nigger brown—all on grey or beige grounds.

Dress Materials

There is much very thick duvetyn and also cashmere for frocks. There is a new sports material which looks very much like a flat Harris tweed, but it has wild boar hair mixed with it, and is called Sanglya—French for wild boar. It is made chiefly in light tones of tobacco brown.

PORK-PIE HATS PERSIST.

Forehead Tilt In New Trend.

Practically all the new hats are tilted over the forehead. Some models even cover it. But this has been tried before, and it tends to age the wearer, which is one good reason why it will never be successful.

A newcomer is the pork-pie. Strange it is that this shape persists, for only one woman in a hundred can wear it with success. Put on the hundredth woman, it imparts just the right smart effect. In its new form, it has often a higher "cuff brim," in fact, it looks like a cross between an American headgear of 1880.

Austere Dress For Autumn

Ribbed Materials Again
To The Fore.

SIMPLE TRIMMINGS

Austerity is the feature of the designs of tailored clothes which Paris dressmakers are selling for the early autumn: clean lines, simple trimmings, used to give shape and colour, never to be used without meaning. The dressmakers claim to be influenced in their designs by the architecture of the day. They would banish fussiness and establish line.

Only the best materials are used, and the dressmakers rely on the quality which Mrs. Primrose demanded from her wedding dress—that it should wear well.

This is especially true of tailored coats, coats and skirts, coat-frocks, made with ribbed woollens in plain warm colours, not figured, but with the rough hairy surface which gives softness and depth. Dark green, dark red, brown are three autumnal colours in use. Black is in fashion, used with colour and with cream-white.

Materials Are Ribbed

All the ribbed materials are used—carduroy, Bedford cord, serge, and repps. Ottoman silks carry on the fashion, with many crepes which have a raised surface. Every manufacturer is showing these rough-faced materials, ribbed, long-haired, almost honey-combed, so deep are the cells produced by different weavings. Knotted surfaces may form a pattern, and the use of mixed colours in a single material gives a pleasant harmony.

There are many special processes, which produce original effects; as an instance there is that of piece dyeing so that the cloth weave takes a lighter shade than the hairy surface.

Bright colours are softened by the weaving into yarns of long white rabbit hairs. When L's first used rabbit fur with wool, he was looked at askance; now every one is using it.

AUTUMN'S COLOUR TREND.

Ivory White For Evening.

Soft hairy cashmere mixtures, closely twisted crepes which have a lustrous surface and do not crash, are used for afternoon dresses. Gauzy crepes are in use for the evening, and velvet is in use both for day and evening.

Wine red, rusty grey, orange, amber are among the many colours which, in different shades, are shown by the manufacturers.

To wear ivory white is an evening fashion which will be continued. The use of a thin material for an afternoon dress and a thick, soft, rough surface woollen for a long coat to go over it is common. Rodier has invariably specialized on making ensembles of materials for this purpose.

BRIDGE NOTES

A Difficult Combination.

Although the process known as Ace or feature showing can be used effectively, it should be resorted to only when the suit in which the contract is to be played has been agreed between the partners or when the opener has made an over-game pre-emptive bid demanding the showing of Aces. Duplication occurs when the Declarer is void in the suit of which his partner holds the Ace.

The following example from Tournament play illustrates:—

S—J 9 8
H—5 2
D—A K Q 7 4 3
C—10 9
Y
Z
S—A K Q
H—K Q J 10 8 6 4
D—None
C—A Q J

Y Z vulnerable; A B invulnerable. At table one Z opened the bidding with Two Hearts; A, No bid; Y, Three Diamonds; B, No bid; Z, Six Hearts; A, No bid; Y, Seven Hearts, which was of course doubled.

At the second table Z, a "natural" bidder, called Five Hearts, and Y advanced to Seven with like result. At table three Z bid Six Hearts straightway, and Y bid the grand slam. At the fourth table Z opened with Three Hearts, and Y bid Five Diamonds, Z Six Hearts, and there it was left and the contract made.

Now the perfect bidding of such a wonderful hand and combination is still a matter of doubt. We can rule out an initial bid of One Heart because on Z's hand it looks likely that he will be left with it. On Approach bidding the opening the Two Hearts ensures a second chance for Z, and enables him to bid a practically certain little slam on the second round. But here the danger comes in. Y with three certain tricks in his hands feels justified (and is he not justified?) in bidding the grand slam. Opening with three Hearts is, unless the player is using the Sims Convention, a doubtful proposition. If Y has not an Ace or two possible tricks he will leave it and Z will miss even game. An initial bid of Four is meaningless. If you do not accept One, Two, Three, or Four, Five or Six must be called. A Five bid, whether system or natural calling is used, demands from partner a small slam bid if he has a sure trick in his hand. If he has two or three he should advance to grand slam.

In this example Y has three certain tricks. The best bidding of the hand is Z, Two Hearts; Y, Four Diamonds; Z, Six Hearts. Y should not now advance. He has indicated his full strength, and on that knowledge Z has bid a little slam. There it should be left. The point is that it is for Z to bid the grand slam, not for Y. Sometimes it happens that opponents by bidding warn you of your danger of the grand slam, while also giving you an opportunity of bidding the small slam.

Here is a case from Club play:—
S—Q 8 7 4
H—J 6 5 3
D—K 4
C—A Q 6
Y

ROUND HONG KONG'S CINEMA THEATRES

MAIL REVIEW

"BEST OF ENEMIES"—KING'S THEATRE.

"Best Of Enemies," now showing at the King's Theatre marks the return to the screen of "America's Boy Friend," Charles (Buddy) Rogers, after an absence of two years.

The picture is a comedy version of the old story of Romeo and Juliet, of parents at feud and perpetually quarrelling, while the younger generation fall in love, to the eventual extinction of the feud. Marian Nixon, Frank Morgan, Greta Nissen and Joseph Cawthorn give excellent support to the star, while the picture gives Buddy a chance to exhibit his virtuosity on a number of musical instruments.

The Mackey Twins, billed as the "dancers with the educated feet" commence their exclusive engagement at the King's Theatre to-day. They bring a great reputation with them from Shanghai and prove a distinct attraction.

MAIL REVIEW

"MADE ON BROADWAY"—QUEEN'S THEATRE.

Robert Montgomery is the star of "Made On Broadway," now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

In "Made On Broadway," he is a high-powered press-agent, who falls for a chorus-girl (Sally Eilers), gets her out of a scrape, then goes back to the girl who really loves him—Madge Evans.

The excellent acting of the principals makes ample amends for a certain thinness in the story. Eugene Palette and the rest of the cast give satisfactory support.

MAIL REVIEW

"UP FOR THE DERBY"—CENTRAL THEATRE

"Up for the Derby," now showing at the Central Theatre, presents the popular British comedian, Sydney Howard, in a hilarious comedy of an adventure with a Derby winner.

The picture gives authentic scenes of the famous English classic and is a worthy successor to the earlier production, "Up for the Cup," in which Sydney Howard also took the leading role.

MAIL REVIEW

"CONGORILLA"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

"Congorilla," the Fox film of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson and all the animals of the African jungle, which is now showing at the Oriental Theatre, outdoes the claims made for it in the announcements. The pictures themselves are convincing and the audience will feel as if they are bodily transported to Nairobi and the Ituri Forest.

Score games all, love all. Z bids One Spade; A, No bid; Y, Two Spades; B, Three Hearts; Z, Four Diamonds; A, Four Hearts; Y, Six Spades. All pass. Here, from the bidding, Y knows that A and B have eight or nine Hearts between them so that Z can have only one or more.

The showing of the second suit of Diamonds by Z is effective and enables Y to call the little slam because here he knows he need not fear duplication of values.

Air Rally For Cairo

International Meeting In December.

KING FUAD IS PATRON

An international aviation meeting will be held in Cairo at the beginning of December under the patronage of King Fuad. It is being organised by the Royal Aeronautic Club of Egypt. At least $1,500 will be offered in money prizes.

Weather conditions in Egypt in December are ideal for flying, and a large number of entries are anticipated. The meeting will be held at the vast aerodrome at Almaraz, a few miles from Cairo.—Reuter.

HEAVY SENTENCE FOR LAUNDRESS.

Collected Articles "Lost In The Wash"

Moscow.

"Ten years' hard labour." The quiet little woman with the red kerchief made no reply when a Moscow judge pronounced this verdict.

She has been found guilty of a systematic "collection" of articles of clothing which had presumably been "lost in the wash" at her laundry here.

Her customers eventually complained to the police.

A raid on the laundress's house disclosed a "museum" of 300 shirts, 400 pairs of socks and 200 sets of underwear.—Reuter.

20,000-YEAR-OLD DRAWINGS.

Prehistoric Canvasses Unearthed.

Cologne.

Prehistoric drawings, believed to be 20,000 years old, have been discovered on stone slabs unearthed at a poultry farm at the village of Aerzon, near Hamelin.

The drawings depict mammoths, cave-bears and wild horses and are similar to the artistic productions of the cave dwellers of La Madeleine and Altamira.

The first of these stone "canvasses" of prehistoric masters was found by the chicken farmer while he was digging the foundations for a new hen coop.

Others have been found as a result of more systematic excavations.—Reuter.

Mr. Vreeken has received a silver medal from Queen Wilhelmina to mark the occasion.—Reuter.

Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co. Report:—Unsettledness is apparently not due to any particular adverse news; such set-backs tend to develop in a market of this type. We think that selective purchasing will continue to develop on moderate recessions.

"Wheat: The early strength has disappeared, with easier Liverpool, Winnipeg and Argentine markets. Support will keep the market from declining under its own weight.

"Cotton: There has been hedge selling and long liquidation, in conjunction with a diminished speculative demand. There has been no news of importance to encourage trading.

Silver: Prices opened higher, reflecting the advance in London and higher foreign exchange cables. There was one order to buy forty contracts for January at 38.05 cents which was filled by scattered selling.

Lead production from the mines of Canada in the month of March totalled 19,223,069 pounds compared with 18,626,329 pounds in February and 21,332,722 pounds in March 1932.

The world production of lead in March totalled 105,211 tons compared with 99,163 tons in February, an increase of 9.4 per cent. Production of refined lead in the United States amounted to 26,569 tons, an increase of 4,038 tons on the February total.

Canada's production of lead in the past four years was as follows: (1929) 326,522,566 pounds; (1930) 332,894,163 pounds; (1931) 287,342,482 pounds; (1932) 256,696,511.

A large part of Canada's lead output is produced at the Sullivan mine in South Eastern British Columbia.

The recent advance in the price of lead in world markets has appreciably improved the situation in the lead mining industry in Canada and shares of companies engaged in the industry have advanced very considerably in price.

PORTUGUESE CLAIM FIRST MAN TO FLY

Strange Story Of 400 Years Ago.

MASTER TORTO OF VIZEU

Lisbon. The Portuguese proudly claim that a compatriot was the first man to fly a heavier-than-air machine. The memoirs of Donna Maria da Gloria say so. The name of this pioneer was Joao Torto. He flew at Vizeu in Portugal nearly 400 years ago.

On June 1st, 1510, this woman writer of the sixteenth century recounts that Master Torto, a teacher of Vizeu, sent the town crier round with the following announcement:

"Be it known to the inhabitants of this town that this month will not end without the greatest of miracles being seen, which is a man with magic wings flying from the belfry tower of the Cathedral to St. Matthew's Fields."

Donna Gloria goes on to describe the machine, the motor power of which was supplied by the muscular strength of the aviator.

It had four wings of Calico, the lower smaller than the upper pair. They were joined by iron hoops lined with rags. Through these, the intrepid flyer thrust his arms and legs. He carried the whole superstructure on his back.

On June 20th, Master Torto donned his "flying kit," the main feature of which was a cap designed to represent the head of an eagle with a gaping beak, through which he peered out upon the magnetic earth.

Up to the top of the belfry tower his strange machine was hoisted. Below, in the town square, townsfolk and people from the neighbouring countryside assembled in such numbers that "not a drop of water could have fallen between them to the ground."

As the hour of five tolled, Torto launched himself into space above the astonished, upturned faces of the crowd below.

"As though indeed a miracle had been vouchsafed," it is recorded, "did Master Torto cleave his way through the imponderable air towards the fields of St. Matthew."

Unfortunately, at that critical moment, the eagle's head slipped down over the aviator's eyes. Blinded and confused, he hovered for some seconds of agonising doubt, his arms and legs beating frantically—then, he dived, head first, upon a roof.

There appears to be no record of a second attempt to conquer the air on the part of Master Torto, though, happily, he escaped with his life.—Reuter.

"TALKIE" STORY PROVES TRUE.

Drama In Melbourne
Theatre.

Melbourne. A crowded house at the State Theatre was moved by a story of a doctor's life of sacrifice.

It was a talkie portrayal of a young physician who realised too late that his calling meant saying good-bye to the life of selfish pleasure which he claimed as a rightful heritage.

Suddenly the spell was broken by calls from the theatre ushers, until a man left his seat and hurried to the telephone.

He was a real doctor, and had been called urgently to the bedside of a patient in hospital.—Reuter.

WHITE CHIEF OF BUSHMAN TRIBE

Afrigander's Strange
Career.

RELEASED FROM CAOL TO BECOME POLICEMAN

Windhoek, British S. W. Africa. Hunted by the police, arrested, sent to prison, and then, a few months later, enrolled as a special constable.

This is the record of Bruno Lemke, perhaps better known as Ngovo, formerly white chief of a Bushman tribe.

Lemke fell foul of the police for big-game shooting without a permit, for which he was arrested and convicted.

Now he has been enlisted as a special constable in the South-West African Police on account of his wonderful ability as a desert man, his knowledge of the Kalahari from the Okavango to the Orange River, and the location of every water hole; his marvellous tracking abilities and, more important than anything else, his unique knowledge of the Bushmen, which he gained during his sojourn with them.

Lemke's enlistment is one of results of discussions between Department of Agriculture and the Police, whereby it has been decided to strengthen the existing police posts on the border between Buchuanaland and South-West Africa and establish others at various places.—Reuter.

London. The Duke and Duchess of York will visit Skye, the island of royal memories on the west coast of Scotland, on September 12. They will open a new boys' hostel at Portree, the only town on the island.

This announcement has been made by Lord Elgin, Chairman of the Carnegie Trust, at a meeting of the Inverness-shire Education Committee.—Reuter.

"CANNED" CALF.

Cow Recognises Voice

MOTHER-INSTINCT CAUSES TROUBLE.

Denman, N. S. W. Hearing the broadcast of a record which included the bellowing of a calf, a cow, whose calf had just been sold, bellowed loudly in response and rushed into a newsagency.

It was driven out; but, still searching for its lost calf, it rushed into the yard, up two steps and into the kitchen, turning wildly about, and knocking rockery from the table.

Women in the kitchen darted for refuge, and it was some time before the newsagent ejected the cow.

The record ended, the "canned" calf stopped bellowing and the cow, with mother-instinct surging still, went away.—Reuter.

INGENIOUS DUTCH SMUGGLERS

Salvation Army Plan

GERMANS DISCOVER TRICK

Brussels. Dutch smugglers on the German and Belgian frontiers have the most exhaustive ingenuity. They have smuggled by tunnel, underground, by armoured car, and now they have been caught smuggling by wire.

In the province of Limbourg smugglers attached a strong cable to a tall tree within Dutch territory. The other end was tied to a tree across the frontier.

At night while the customs officers were scouring the ground for smugglers, these men were hidden in the thick foliage, and were delivering their contraband on a level with the tree-tops.

Eventually German officials discovered the trick. Several men have been arrested.—Reuter.

WORLD'S OLDEST MAN DYING

Zaro Agha Sick And
In Poverty.

A PUBLIC SYMPATHY

Istanbul. Zaro Agha, the "oldest man in the world"—he is about 160—is seriously ill in Istanbul.

It is feared that he may not recover as his system is worn out and doctors are unable to prescribe helpful treatment.

Kudret Hanem, the 11th wife of Zaro Agha, died two months ago and the old man has been living alone.

Although he made large sums of money during his visits to America and Britain, Zaro is now practically without means and is living in misery. It is stated that the monthly pension of £7 which he received from the Istanbul municipality has been withdrawn.

There are about 30 relatives of Zaro Agha living in Istanbul, but none has been near him during his illness. It is possible that a public subscription may be started, so that the famous veteran may be enabled to receive proper care and treatment during his last days.—Reuter.

BLACK STAMPS FOR MOURNING.

Finland's Innovation.

Helsingfors. "Mourning Stamps" are being sold by the Finnish postal authorities.

The use of black-edged envelopes and notepaper is not customary in Finland.

So black stamps, with a white flower in the centre, have been put on sale at 1/2d. each to enable letterwriters to show that they are in mourning.

The stamp is of no actual value, as ordinary stamps of the usual value must also be stuck on the envelope.—Reuter.

NATIONALISM BOOM IN TURKEY.

Creed For Students.

Istanbul. Turkish schoolchildren are to recite their "Creed" every morning. The Minister of Education has ordered it to be said daily in every school throughout the country.

Here it is:—"I am a Turk, honest and hard working. My duty is to protect those weaker than myself, respect my elders and to love my country truly. My ambition is to progress and to raise myself up. I give my whole self to Turkey."—Reuter.

DEVIL'S ISLAND EX-CONVICTS

Overhead Transport

NEWLY-MARRIED COUPLE'S
MISSION OF MERCY

Paris. Three men and one woman of the Salvation Army recently set sail for the dreaded French convict station of French Guiana, which includes Devil's Island.

They are going into voluntary exile in the cause of humanity and two of them, Captain and Madame Hausdorf, had been only married a week or two previously. The other member of the party is Captain-Adjutant Pean. It is proposed to give a healthy aim in life to discharged convicts who are not allowed to leave the country and to provide material as well as moral comfort for these outcasts.

The Salvation Army officers have learned a number of trades, such as soap making and jam making, which they hope to be able to teach the convicts, but are not taking out any tools or machinery with them as they must find out which trades will be most appropriate.—Reuter.

4,000-YEAR-OLD FISHING BOAT.

Late Stone Age Relic
Found In Sweden.

PRIMITIVE TACKLE
DISCOVERED.

Helsingfors. At the small Swedish hamlet of Loknevi, a boat belonging to the late Stone Age has been found embedded in a bog.

It is a still well-preserved vessel with a length of eighteen feet and is built of pine-tree logs. Primitive fishing tackle was found lying in the boat.

It is said that the find is about four thousand years old.—Reuter.

KEYES AND KEYS

Admiral Keyes had a good story about his brother, Colonel Keyes. He went to choose a fancy dress. The costume made a great fuss of him, took him to a private room, and showed him every attention. Colonel Keyes was a little puzzled. Then an assistant came for the address. "What theatre, sir?" he asked. On the label was written

Bullying Of Austria.

Hitlerism's private war against the Austrian State has been recognised by the British, French, and Italian Governments. Following the assertion of Nazi dictatorship in Bavaria by deposition of the Bavarian State Government, there began a deliberate attempt to assist from Germany a series of Nazi manifestations against the Austrian Government. A Hitlerite Minister, Dr. Frank, visited Vienna by aeroplane with all the signs of providing an excuse for a Nazi demonstration on a large scale, but the attempt failed. The Austrian Government under Dr. Dollfuss proved unexpectedly firm. There were wholesale arrests of Austrian Nazis, and a number of German Hitlerite agents were deported. Germany retorted in kind with arrests of Austrians. It was reported that extensive preparations had been made for raids by German Nazi storm-troops into Austria. Then the Hitlerites became aware; it seemed, that they had taken a false step. Italy regarded the movement with an unfriendly eye, and the Hungarian Government warned the Germans that the prospective invasion of Austria was arousing a counter-movement to restore an Austro-Hungarian monarchical State. But the Hitlerites merely changed their tactics. The latest demonstration is, by means of leaflets dropped from German aeroplanes over Austria and by wireless broadcasts, to incite Austrian Nazis to revolt and overthrow the Government in Vienna by force. The British, French, and Italian Governments have intervened with inquiries in Vienna; and the British and French Governments have now presented in Berlin identical and friendly Notes, citing against the German action the article of the Peace Treaty in which Germany recognised and undertook strictly to respect Austrian independence and the preamble of the Four Power Pact of June last to which the Hitler Government was a signatory. For some weeks Mr. Wickham Steed has been stressing in the London "Sunday Times" the gravity of the Hitler menace against Austria and the campaign behind it. He is not alone in his misgivings. Public opinion in Britain is veering towards endorsement of French suspicions of secret German re-armament, and the dangers of the new militarism and military training of the German male population in Hitler's "private army." The German policy, constantly announced from German propagandist wireless stations, is to establish a new Germany in Europe, within enlarged boundaries, upon the basis of pan-Germanism. "We shall not rest," declared the Nazi Minister of Education in an address in June, "until the work of making all Germans into one people is fully accomplished, and we shall crush with brutality and cruelty everyone who withstands us." The Minister for Propaganda (Dr. Goebbels) has said that "this is Germany's world mission," and that it is the object of "the German revolution." The pan-German organisation in Berlin asserts that, while there are 65 million Germans in Germany, there are another 32 millions living abroad. Its attention is now concentrated upon bringing within the new "racial State" the millions of Germans living immediately beyond the German borders. In Austria alone there are said to be 6,700,000. Moreover, the large Jewish settlements in Vienna excite the other notable feature of the Hitler programme of violence. One contributor to the "Contemporary Review" likens the new fanaticism in Germany to that of the Jacobins in the French Revolution. Another writer in the same periodical views its probable development as no less deadly to the peace of Europe than that upheaval. Both writers believe that Hitler plans to accomplish his purpose by instigating in Austria a "gradual revolt," leading to an impossible situation, when national barriers would go down of themselves. Obviously if that can be done in Austria, it can be attempted also in the Polish Corridor, in Polish Silesia, and in strips of Czechoslovakia. The war is carried on by "private armies" rather than by national forces; invasion is not by open war, but by propaganda to ferment insurrection sympathetic with the aggressive policy of a neighbouring Power. But it is none the less war, and it is a challenge to the Powers and Leagues to keep the peace, and a defiance of the Versailles Treaty. The other three Powers of the Four Power Pact have intimated, with all restraint, that these considerations are involved in the German demonstrations.

The Royal Poor
The ex-Kaiser of Germany, whose private fortune has just been assessed at £35,000,000, is luckier than the majority of deposed monarchs.

The ex-King of Spain lost the bulk of his private fortune when he left the country. All his palaces and landed estates passed to the new Republic.

Ex-King Amanullah was at one time credited with a fortune of £8,000,000, but now he lives very simply in Florence.

The late ex-Shah of Persia was reduced to the pawning of jewels when living as a voluntary exile in Paris.

The ex-Empress Zita and her claimant son, Otto, lived for years in a small villa in Northern Spain with nothing but the essentials of life, and remain to this day among the royal-poor.

Haifa Harbour
The new harbour at Haifa, which was opened recently, is the finest in the Eastern Mediterranean. It is capable of being expanded in accordance with the vast developments expected in the hinterland of Palestine.

The construction has been carried out departmentally by the Palestine Government. At first it was proposed to award the contract to a British firm. But as Palestine is held under a mandate from the League of Nations that was not possible.

Italy raised objections. So it was decided to execute the work under the direct administration of Jerusalem.

BRITAIN'S UNJUST
TITHE LAW*GOVERNMENT MUST MOVE IN DISPUTE*FARMER'S GRIEVANCE JUSTIFIED

(By A. A. B.)

London. Undoubtedly, as the law now stands, tithe owners are entitled to payment, however hard it may be in individual cases.

It is pre-eminently a case for settlement by an arbitral tribunal, agreed upon by the owners and payers of tithe. The State must intervene to prevent the continuance of a dispute which is unseemly to both churchmen and agriculturists, just because both parties enlist our sympathies.

Nobody must be penalised, old as the bargain may be, and the cultivator of the soil must not have his business hampered or made impossible. Considering that Mr. Baldwin, six or seven years ago, advanced twenty-six millions to the coal industry, in the hope of ending a dispute which issued in the General Strike, the State might well be asked to advance a loan to help the farmers to buy out the tithe-owners at a reasonable number of years' purchase, to be decided after inquiry by the tithe arbitration tribunal.

The tithe-owners, on their side, must be reasonable, and make reductions of tithe where the tribunals decide that the amount of tithe is disproportionate to the actual or potential productive value of the land. In no case, in my opinion, ought tithe to be leviable on the implements of agriculture.

Machine Displaces Man
Taking of implements, it is extraordinary, as showing the domination of the modern mind by machinery, how blind people are to its ultimate effects upon the labour market. I was standing beside a working man the other day, watching the American drill in some street-paving operation. "Why," said he proudly, "it does the work of 20 men!" The fool did not seem to realise that it displaced the labour of 20 men like himself, and was one of the reasons why he was standing idle watching the drill.

So in agriculture, these American and Canadian tractors, which cut, and bind, and thresh, will render unemployable a large amount of agricultural labour and send more of them to the artisan labour markets in the towns.

However, that's another story, and has only a remote connection with the dispute between the payers and the receivers of tithe, which must be settled by agreement, assisted by State loans, of which the security might be the district concerned.

It is surely as justifiable to levy a rate for the settlement of a tithe dispute as for the cutting of a new road for the convenience of people who have no interest in the district, through which they dash at the rate of 40 miles an hour.

East Markets.

THREE-YEAR STATISTICS
London. Figures which the Air Ministry has published indicate that British aircraft manufacturers are gaining a substantial lead over their foreign rivals. In the European market alone, the total value of British aircraft exports during the past three years was £1,180,432 in excess of those of the United States, Britain's nearest competitor.

Over the complete three-year period, the United States holds a slight lead in the Far East markets, but the position was reversed in 1932, when the value of exports from the United Kingdom to these markets totalled £186,297, compared with £149,853 from the United States.

During the three years covered by the Air Ministry statistics, the United Kingdom aviation exports to other parts of the British Empire exceeded those of the United States by £1,988,170.

Of the total of 2,160 engines exported by the United States last year, 2,010 went to Soviet Russia. Disarmament will follow disarmament, will follow disarmament.

Are the College Fellows and the half-starved clergy to find their incomes doubled? Are the deans and canons suddenly to join the "new rich"? If not, why not? The Church of England is still a national institution, and long may it remain so.

Disestablishment like the Bishop of Durham ought to be regarded as a last resort, and not as a first step.

Y.M.C.A. GALA ON SATURDAY

Surprisingly Few Entries
For Championships.

50 YARDS AGGREGATE RACE
CLASHES WITH BIG EVENT

(By CRAWL)

Surprisingly enough there has so far been a scarcity of entries for the Y.M.C.A. Championships which take place on Saturday night at their pool commencing at 9 p.m.

A very entertaining programme has been arranged which includes four championships, the Men's 50, 220, 100 Yards Breast Stroke and Diving championships.

The men's 50 yards, which will be the main event on the programme, will probably be won by A. G. Donn, with R. B. Wood, E. W. Raiton, F. J. Anslow, C. Chadderton, and R. Goldman as likely contenders.

The Men's 220 should go to Lange, while the 100 Yards Breast Stroke will probably result in a thrilling duel between G. H. Fowler and W. Schreuder, and possibly W. F. Kerr. The diving will not attract many entries, but Morrison is expected to secure his first victory this year.

It will be most unfortunate for some of the sprinters that the semi-final of the Men's 50 Yards Aggregate handikap takes place on the same night, and it will probably mean that those with possible chances will have to scratch from one of the two 50 yards events.

Two novelty mixed races will also be featured, while dancing to the strains of Mickey's Melody Makers will be indulged in after the gala.

The following is the programme: 50 yds. handikap for Aggregate Cup (semi-final)
200 yds. championship
100 yds. Breast Stroke Championship
Diving Championship
50 yds. Ladies Handikap for Aggregate Cup

London, Aug. 24.

Mr. G. E. Collins, of the London Gliding Club, has set up a new English distance gliding record with a flight of twenty-two miles. The previous record was thirteen miles. Collins had recently set up a new British gliding altitude record of 1,750 feet.

HONG KONG SWIMMING ASSN. CHAMPIONSHIPS UNDER REVIEW

V.R.C. Include 50 Yards In Title Events

Gittins, Lawrence And E. B. da Roza Strong Challengers.

ENTRIES FOR OPEN EVENTS CLOSE ON SEPT. 18

A new event in the 50 Yards free style has been included in the V.R.C. Championships Open to the Colony which are to take place on September 25-28.

Fast times have been recorded for the distance on many occasions hitherto, but the distance has never been included as a championship event until this year.

In the Olympic Games the minimum distance recognised for the free style races is 100 yards.

Among the probable starters are S. V. Gittins, W. Lawrence and E. B. da Roza, whose superiority over this distance has not been definitely decided. All three are capable of clocking under 26 seconds, and it is confidently expected that the first record will be set up under this figure.

There are many other fast swimmers in the Colony over this distance, and should they compete, the result will be even more difficult to forecast.

The distance is very unsatisfactory, due to the inconsistent times recorded by the swimmers. A fast get-away and a quick turn definitely decides the result of a race over this distance.

Entrance fees for the events, which close on September 18 at 6 p.m., are $1.00 per event and $3.00 per team. Heats will be swum at the V.R.C. on Friday-September 22, at 5.30 p.m., and the finals will take place on September 25-28, inclusive, starting at 5.30 p.m. each day.

The following is the list of Championships open to the Colony:-

50 Yards, free style
100 Yards, free style
220 Yards, free style
440 Yards, free style
880 Yards, free style
100 Yards, breast-stroke
100 Yards, back-stroke
High Diving
Team race, (6 men a side)
Ladies' 100 Yards, free style
Boys' 100 Yards, free style

ARMY TITLES TO BE DECIDED THIS MONTH

Borderers And Artillery Strongest Challengers.

RELAY EVENTS FEATURE CARD OF THIRTEEN EVENTS

The British Army Swimming Championships (Hong Kong Division) will take place at the Victoria Recreation Club's bath on September 22 and 23 commencing at 2 p.m. on each day.

The programme, which is almost identical to that of last year, is expected to draw a large entry list.

As most of the events are team races the majority of events will be comprised of relays and should add greatly to the entertainment.

The South Wales Borderers and the Royal Artillery are expected to figure prominently in the championships. The former have the services of W. T. Campbell, the Army champion, D. Sutherland and E. Fullager, and the latter Selley and others.

To date there has been no information with regard to the events, but the following events took place last year will probably be included in the programme:-

Inter-Battery, Company and Independent Small Units Relay
4 heats—First in each heat to final.
men—25; 50; 75; 100; 25 yds. respectively
Army Boys' Handicap Race, (50 Yds.)
8 heats—First in each heat and fastest second to final.

PAGET'S FINE DISPLAY IN OPEN EVENT

V.R.C. LADIES' RACE A BIG SUCCESS

(By G. L.)

NO less than thirty-three names were received for the Boy's team-race staged at the V.R.C. gala on Saturday night. The race was won by J. Gutierrez' team after an exciting struggle.

A boy's event is always staged at the V.R.C. Galas and this season the entries broke all records.

As a result of careful training and coaching the standard of swimming has shown a marked improvement and youngsters are well on the path to becoming future Colony's champions.

THE Ladies' 50 Yards handicap event was a huge success, and there is no doubt that events for the ladies will be staged at all future Galas.

Mrs. McMahon and Miss Doris Hunt have shown a vast improvement in their speed under the careful eye of the V.R.C. experts and excellent times are expected to be set up for the Ladies' 100 Yards event in the forthcoming Championships open to the Colony.

ALTHOUGH she did not win her race, Mrs. McMahon, in winning her heat, clocked 32 seconds dead for the 50 yards, which is well within the Colony's best.

Doris Hunt is the stronger swimmer of the two, but lacks the speed of her rival. She is, however, giving careful attention to her style and has the makings of a Colony champion. She is greatly favoured for the forthcoming Harbour Race.

TEDDY Paget showed himself vastly superior in the art of throwing the water-polo ball and improved nearly six feet on F. Webb's distance of 62 feet last year. Paget was one of the favourites for the event and easily outclassed his nearest rival, W. Lawrence. Paget's distance of 68 feet is even more outstanding when it is taken into consideration that he is not an active water-polo player and seldom practises with the ball.

J. R. "JOCKEY" SOARES' win in the Long Plunge was also generally expected. He proved an easy winner, though the distance of 55 feet 6 inches was very poor in comparison with last year's distance of over 61 feet set up by S. H. Garrod. This event is not as popular as it was in former years.

N. DELGADO, who won the Members' "C" class 100 Yards Breast-stroke event, completed the distance in 87 seconds. M. de V. Soares, who was fancied for this event after his fine swim in the heats, failed to come up to expectations.

L. P. Silva, however, won the Members' "D" class 75 Yards handicap race as I forecasted, best.

50 yards Free Style (Indian) Open to one man from each battery of the H. K. S. Bde. R.A. and each Company of the 3rd Bn. 5th Jat Regt. 2 heats—1st and 2nd in each heat to final.

Army Championships 50 yards breaststroke, 50 yards backstroke and 50 yards free style 4 heats—1st in each heat to final. Officers' Race (100 yards) 4 heats—1st in each heat to final. Army Girls' Handicap Race (50 yards) 2 heats—1st and 2nd in each heat to final.

Indian Relay Race, H. K. S. Bde. R.A. versus 3rd Bn. 5th Jat Regt. 6 heats each 50 yards 150 yards Championship heats—1st in each heat to final. 100 yards Free Style (Indian) As for event 2.

Inter-Brigade R.A. Battalion and Company Small Units Relay 4 heats—1st in each heat to final. Team and distances as for event 1. Battered Boys' Race (50 yards) Three heats—1st in each heat and fastest second to final.

4 heats—1st in each heat to final. 25 yards As for event 2.

4 heats—1st in each heat to final. 25 yards As for event 2.

4 heats—1st in each heat to final. 25 yards As for event 2.

ARRANGEMENTS IN HAND

(By CRAWL).

So far no invitation has been issued to the Canton Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation by the Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association but I understand that tentative arrangements have been made between the two bodies and something is likely to develop before the end of the month.

In all probability the Canton Federation's representative swimming team for the Nanking meeting will meet the Association in an interport contest before leaving for the North.

Swimming Personalities (V.)

Lionel Roza Pereira's Achievements

THE finest and most versatile swimmer in the Colony at the moment, Lionel Roza Pereira, at the age of 23, threatens to win every V.R.C. Championship, which are open to the Colony at the forthcoming V.R.C. Open Championships.

Roza-Pereira has this season shown a big improvement in speed, which he badly lacked two years ago. He is the present holder of all championships over 100 yards, and was second last year to Edward Roza in the Colony's High Diving.

At the first V.R.C. gala this season Roza-Pereira won the Senior Members' 100 yards race from scratch in 60.2/5 seconds, which is better than the time recorded by the present holder, S. V. Gittins.

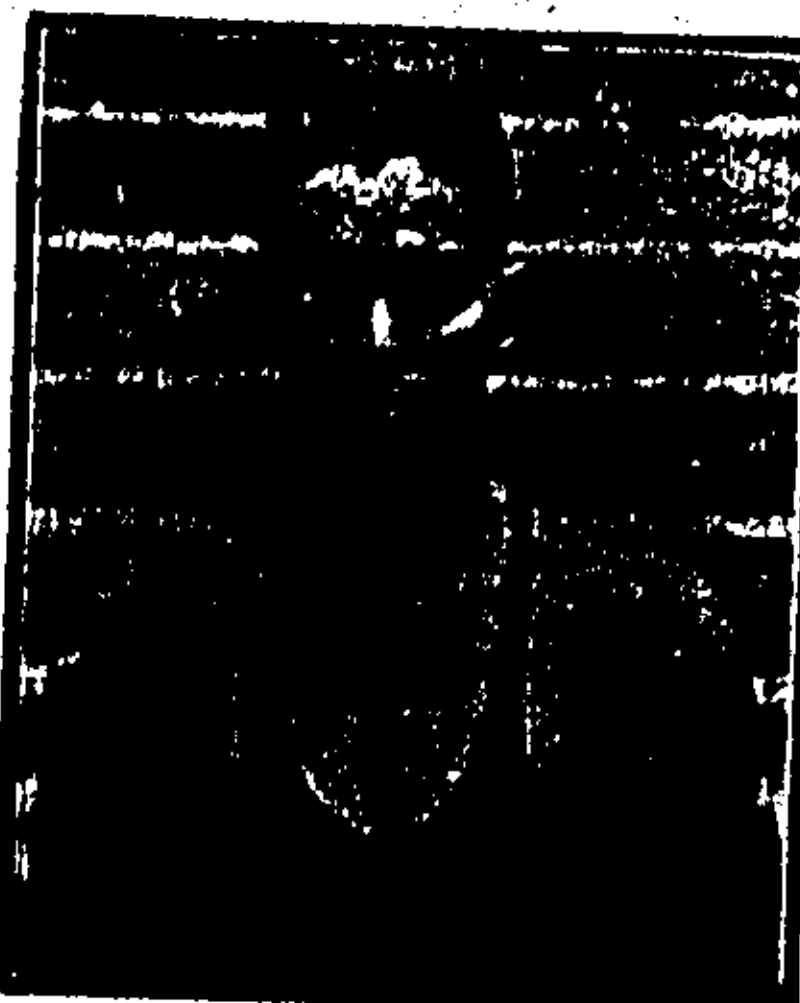

Roza-Pereira commenced swimming at an early age and entered competitive swimming in 1924 to take second place to A. Bias in the Boys' championship. He won the event the next year at the age of 15 to record his first important win in competitive swimming.

Roza-Pereira, like Edward Roza, and other prominent Portuguese swimmers, obtained his early training at Laichikok beach, where the distance of the cove was often crossed.

From that period he competed regularly in the V.R.C. boys' races, showing great promise as a long distance swimmer. While still unattached to the club he made frequent trips across the harbour, including a notable swim from the V.R.C. club-house to Laichikok beach.

He became a member of the V.R.C. in 1928 and immediately became a keen rival to G. J. Cooke and J. R. Johnstone over the long distance events, taking second place in many of them and being placed in the harbour races.

In 1930, after J. R. Johnstone left the unique honour of being "cor" in the crew which made the first trip ever recorded from Hong Kong to Macao, on June 8, 1930.

Roza-Pereira's new aquatic sport in surf-board paddling, which in the space of a couple of months he has mastered in an efficient manner. He took second place in the gruelling half-mile race at the Surf-board Regatta held at Repulse Bay recently.

At the moment there is not a swimmer in the Colony who can offer a serious challenge to Roza-Pereira over the long distance events, and it is probable that he will enjoy this undisputed leadership in local aquatics for many years to come.

The list of Lionel Roza-Pereira's successes in local Championships are as follows.

220 yards—2 minutes 40 seconds.
440 Yards—5 minutes 57 seconds.
880 yard—12 minutes 28 seconds.
Harbour Race—25 minutes 38 seconds.

1931.
220 Yards (No Race).
440 Yards—5 minutes 48.4/5 seconds.
880 Yards—12 minutes 3/5 seconds.
Back-stroke—100 Yards Time 76.5/5 seconds.
Harbour Race—25 minutes 54 seconds.

1932.
220 Yards—2 minutes 37.5/5 seconds.
440 Yards—5 minutes 59.2/5 seconds.
880 Yards—12 minutes 19.5/5 seconds.
Harbour Race—25 minutes 24.5/5 seconds.
Back-stroke 100 Yards—74.1/5 seconds.

Roza-Pereira has also distinguished himself as a rowing coach, having piloted V.R.C. crews on several occasions. He holds the unique honour of being "cor" in the

S. CHINA PROBABLE WINNERS NEXT YEAR

Y.M.C.A. STARS SHOULD BETTER THEIR TIMES

KWOK TO ATTACK BRITISH RECORDS FOR 200 YARDS BREAST STROKE

(By CRAWL).

ALTHOUGH the Hong Kong International Amateur Swimming Association's championships are now over a review of them would not be out of place.

The Chinese affiliated Clubs are to be congratulated on making their first auspicious entry into the Colony's swimming history en masse.

The European Y.M.C.A., as the sole European Club are also to be congratulated on obtaining five out of nine victories in the Men's section and five out of seven championships in the Ladies' Section.

Considering what they were up against they performed extraordinarily well and no one was more surprised at their success than they themselves.

By gaining these victories, however, that have by no means conquered the best available champions in the Association. Shek Kam-pui, of the Young Companions Aquatic Association did not enter, and Miss Yeung Sau-king, of South China, had she been swimming in all her events, would probably have reversed the ultimate results of the championships.

Had Shek Kam-pui entered for the 100 and 220 Yards he would have been the favourite and would probably have won them, but a trip to Canton, and his inexcusable action of not sending his entry form in time prevented him from competing.

Miss Yeung Sau-king, whose duels with Mrs. Schreuder were eagerly anticipated by swimming enthusiasts was unfortunately indisposed on two nights of the heats and was compelled to scratch from the championships, thus giving the Y.M.C.A. lady champion an easy passage in the 100 Yards and 220 Yards Breast Stroke.

Miss Yeung's Misfortune

I do not think that there is any doubt that Miss Yeung Sau-king would have carried off the 100 Yards and possibly the 220 Yards Breast Stroke, thereby augmenting the number of championship victories gained by South China at the expense of the Y.M.C.A.

The hero of the championships was undoubtedly Kwok Chun-hang, who, although he entered the majority of Men's events, was compelled to scratch some of them to ensure victories in others.

His very sporting gesture in entering the finals of the Men's 100 Yards robbed him of his opportunity of shattering the British National and Amateur records for the 200 Yards Breast Stroke.

As a result of competing in the 100 Yards his energy was exhausted and after a brief rest during one race he was forced to face the starter in the 200 Yards Breast Stroke. He, however, swam magnificently to come within four seconds of the British National record.

I am sure that Kwok is quite capable of shattering this record and am informed that he will make an attempt on it at the end of this month when he will be pitted against the best available person over this distance.

His brilliant recovery in the Men's 100 Yards Back Stroke was another instance of excellent timing and no one was more surprised than Leung Shui-man of the Chinese Bathing Club.

Kwok's Fine Win

Kwok, who was content to use the double over-arm stroke hung back until the third length when he spurted and drew level with Leung. His amazing stamina and staying powers helped him considerably in luring Leung Shui-man to a faster pace with the last length still to go. This proved Leung's downfall as he was unable to spurt in the final lap when Kwok came through to win the title.

Another surprise was supplied by A. G. Donn, who was favourite for the Men's 50 Yards. He was totally eclipsed in this event by Leung Shui-man and Chan Fook-sing, a newcomer to championships.

Donn lost the event on account of his surprising tactics of taking the first length slower than the second. He then found out his mistake and was unable to make up for the deficit, even to the extent of obtaining second place.

After this debacle my estimation of Donn's capabilities fell 50 per cent, but the same evening he told me he would prove I was wrong and set out to do so in the Men's 100 Yards.

In the final length he was generally expected that Donn had not bright chances in the 100. I did not go so far as to say that he had not a hope, but I told him that the race man's reputation on the Double

BORDERERS CARRY OFF TEAM EVENT

W. T. Campbell broke the Army harbour swim record this morning when he covered the distance from Railway Pier, Kowloon, to the R.A.S.C. camber in 23 mins. 27 secs., which was 1 min. 58 secs. lower than the record he established last year.

This is 1 min. 10 secs. above J. Finch's Colony record, established in 1906.

H.E. Major-General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., Officer Commanding the British Forces in China, and Mrs. Borrett followed the progress of the race by launch. Brigadier R. B. Cousins D.S.O. was also among the big crowd who witnessed the annual event.

The first seventeen to finish were:-

1. Pte. Campbell (S.W.B.) 23.27.0
2. Pte. Fullager (S.W.B.) 24.5.2
3. Pte. Wallace (S.W.B.) 24.27.2
4. L/Cpl. Sutherland (S.W.B.)
5. Pte. (69) Smith (S.B.W.)

14. Spr. Bryce (S.U.)
15. Pte. Adams (S.U.)
16. Pte. Wess (S.U.)
17. Sig. Cord (S.U.)

Securing the first five places the Borderers won the team event with 10 points as against the Royal Artillery's 33, the Lincoln's 35, and the Small Units' 68 points.

Gnrs. Ellington and Selley were the two other members of the Artillery team; L/Cpl. Bostock and Pte. Davidson were the other Lincolns' representatives; Spr. Peg and Sig. Ford also competed for the Small Units. Pte. Hall was the sixth man in the Borderers' team.

South China Meeting To-night.

PROVINCIAL MEETING DATES AGAIN ALTERED

(By CRAWL).

The date of the Canton Provincial Meeting has been altered and will not take place at previous date, as announced on September 7, 6.

The date will be fixed in the last week of this month.

The Chinese Clubs in Hong Kong have not come to a definite decision as to whether they will send representatives up to Canton.

The Chinese Bathing Club have so far decided not to send any man, but some Chinese are holding a Provincial Championship meeting to-night to make a final decision.

There is one big question which must be settled before they will send any man to Canton.

Are they willing to let such men represent Canton at the Nanking meeting on the Double

THE EYE OF OSIRIS

"Double!" Hargraves was frankly astonished. "That's going to run you into pretty big money. We paid a fat price, as it was."

"The intrinsic value of a precious stone is so much and no more," replied Durstine. "It is rarity or history that makes for exceptional values. The Eye of Osiris, as you know, has both. Now, add to that the identity of our client, and his strong personal reasons for wanting the stone, and you'll see why he is willing to pay much a price. And remember, princes don't bargain."

"Now, if you wish, I'll arrange the sale myself," continued Durstine suavely. "It was only a suggestion—"

"But a good one," cut in Hargraves. "If I could bring it off, it would be a big leg-up for me. So I'll cable London myself. The price we paid, by the way, was ten thousand pounds."

"Then my price to you shall be twenty thousand pounds," replied Durstine, and abruptly he became very business-like. "As my papers show, I have here a draft drawn on the Anglo-Egyptian Bank. You, of course, have the necessary sale papers. Therefore, we can arrange the sale immediately you receive confirmation from London. I'll give you the draft, and when it has been honoured and the papers approved, you will turn the stone over to me."

Durstine looked at his watch and considered frowningly.

"It is now six o'clock. Then it would be about nine p.m. in London. Wouldn't it? Therefore, if you send a cablegram now, it will be delivered first thing in the morning, and we shall have an answer by noon."

Hargraves nodded.

"You've seen the emerald, of course?" he inquired.

"As a matter of fact, I haven't," admitted Durstine carelessly, though his heart leaped. "Our agent reported on it, however, and his opinion is expert. You have it here?"

"It's in the hotel safe. Suppose you take a look at it now, before I send the cable."

In a quiet corner of the hotel lounge, Hargraves opened a velours pouch and took from it an ornate morocco leather case. He handed the latter to Durstine.

This was the moment for which Durstine had been preparing for weeks; for which he had spent time and money, and had done many hours of careful thinking.

As he reached out with his right hand to take the case, his left hand held the paste imitation that had bulged his vest pocket a few moments before.

The Frenchman was calm and his nerves steady. Even so, he sucked in his breath sharply as his eyes fell on the Eye of Osiris. And well he might, for it was a breathtaking sight.

Lying on white satin, this enormous oriental emerald, more valuable than a diamond of equal size and perfection, glittered and shone with a dazzling brilliant green fire. For several silent minutes, Durstine gazed in genuine admiration.

Then he picked the oval-shaped emerald from the case, and examined it carefully under an eyeglass.

"A marvellous gem!" he exclaimed at last, and appeared to return it to the case.

Not too quickly, not too slowly, the Frenchman handed the case to Hargraves, meanwhile closing it. Hargraves could see the green oval within as the lid closed down.

What he did not see was that that oval was paste.

When the case was again in the safe, the two men composed a cablegram to London.

Durstine was scarcely able to hide his elation. The whole thing had gone off as he had planned, easily and safely. The cablegram was the final step, to cover his escape. By the time Hargraves received a reply, and had occasion to look into the morocco case, Durstine would be on the Mediterranean, bound for Italy.

However, Durstine still had some hours before he could take train for Alexandria, and in the meantime he meant to stay discreetly close to Hargraves, just as a precaution. Thus the two men spent the remainder of the afternoon strolling in the bazaars, and when they returned to the hotel Durstine invited Hargraves to dinner.

Hargraves accepted, and the two men agreed to meet an hour later.

In spite of careful planning, Durstine had slipped.

In calculating the difference of time between Cairo and London, he had turned the clock the wrong way. Instead of it having been 9 p.m. in London when Hargraves had sent the message, it had been 3 p.m.

Thus the London office had received the message and no time had been lost in replying. Luckily for himself, Hargraves had not detected the miscalculation.

He was just getting into his dinner jacket when the reply came. His surprise at receiving it was quickly overshadowed by the message itself. Curt and to the point, it read:

No record here of Martin Durstine with Jacquard's. Advise careful investigation.

A sickening wave of fear passed over Hargraves as he read and re-read the message. Three minutes later, he stood at the cashier's window. With bated breath and trembling fingers, he opened the ornate morocco case.

Unnumbered seconds ticked by while Hargraves stood motionless as a sphinx, staring at the object in the case before him. It was oval, it was green, it sparkled brilliantly; but it was not an emerald.

After a while, Hargraves closed the case and quietly told the puzzled cashier to return it to the safe. Then he went to his room. He looked and felt like a man who has just witnessed a cataclysm. And, indeed, to him the loss of the emerald was hardly less than that. A small fortune had been lost for his company; his career was smashed and lighted a cigarette. He was calm; calm as only a man can be who knows that the worst has happened. He smoked and thought. And before his cigarette burned out he had reconstructed Durstine's whole plan, in outline at least. Having decided what had happened, he looked ahead. His first impulse was to notify the police. But a few moments' reflection discounted this idea. If the police were called in, then his company must inevitably learn all the details; details which, when written briefly, would make him appear much more of a fool than he actually had been.

Such a report, if it didn't lose him his job, would certainly lose him the confidence of his company.

The obvious answer to this situation was to get the emerald back himself, without any fuss, cable the company that the deal was off, and let it go at that.

Easier said than done! But it had to be done. And immediately the problem was set clearly before him, Hargraves's matter-of-fact mind went to work.

A minute at the telephone allayed his chief fear that Durstine had already slipped out; a glance at his watch satisfied him, moreover, that time-table satisfied him, moreover, that the Frenchman did not intend to leave Cairo until time to catch the night train for Alexandria.

Hargraves had a revolver which, as a gem buyer, he was permitted to carry. But Durstine was not the man to be bluffed by a gun. Moreover, having a gun, Hargraves felt he might somehow be forced to use it; and this was not the game at all.

"It's been a game of wits all along, and a game of wits it must remain," decided Hargraves. "I've got about three hours in which to get back that stone. If I fail, I'll call in the police, then go out and look for a new job."

Strangely enough, he felt almost cheerful as he went downstairs to keep his dinner appointment.

Ten minutes later, Durstine entered the lounge, and Hargraves, conversing genially with a short, stocky stranger, gave the Englishman a swift look, saw no change in his appearance, and confidently approached the pair.

A moment later he was shaking hands with a stranger, whose name was "Foster," added Hargraves, "a scientist, and Egyptologist."

"Indeed, monsieur, you're an interesting calling."

At the same time, Durstine made the mental reservation that there was something strange about Foster's appearance. He had a set mouth, prominent nose, and a full-lipped mouth, and a full-lipped mouth, and a full-lipped mouth.

He had nothing definite to go on for Foster was a pleasant enough man, though talkative. He seemed to possess a passion for Egypt, ancient and modern. Durstine was forced to admit to himself that whatever Foster was or might have been, he certainly knew Egypt.

Fortunately, Durstine was so intent on trying to probe Foster that he paid little attention to the Englishman. Hargraves did his best to appear normal; he talked freely, smiled easily and often, as became a man who had had a streak of very good fortune.

But had Durstine been watching closely, he might have detected an alert watchfulness, a certain grim hardness in Hargraves's manner that had not been there before.

Dinner was over, the men relaxed over coffee and cigars, when Durstine's suspicions of Foster suddenly crystallized.

In an apparently irrelevant discourse, Foster let fall something about Abydos, and passed on the word, while he touched a match to his cigar.

"Abydos, eh?" Hargraves caught at the word casually enough. "That's up the river, isn't it? Where the tomb of Osiris was found?"

"One tomb," corrected Foster, "but a cloud of smoke." "Legend says that Osiris, eldest of the kings of ancient Egypt, was slain by his enemies. His body was cut into fourteen pieces and scattered over the land. His wife, Isis, found each piece. Osiris then became a god, his tomb sanctified." The tomb at Abydos was supposed to contain his

H.K.I.A.S.A. Championships Under Review

For the first three lengths it looked very much as if my tip on Lange was to bear fruit, but at that fatal last turning, Donn again created a sensation by sweeping past the entire field to clock the excellent time of 61.4-5 seconds in fresh water.

Throughout the race one could see that he was going fairly strong and would probably end up strongly, but no one expected him to win by such a convincing margin.

Lange's Collapse

Lange, although more of a middle distance swimmer than a sprinter, sprang a great surprise in the 100 Yards when he took an early lead from the entire field. At one stage he looked very much like the Association's new champion until he collapsed on the third turning when he allowed Donn, Leung Shui-man and Kwok Chun-hang to pass him.

His one mistake was in taking the lead much too quickly instead of hanging on to the others and finishing up as Donn did.

His entry in this event cost him all chances in the Men's 440 Yards in which he faced the fresh Campbell.

Lange, incidentally, is a very popular swimmer and the majority of European swimmers were looking forward to at least one victory from him. His win in the Men's 220 Yards on Saturday night was the most popular of the night.

Campbell's Turn Wrong

Campbell, who was only swimming in the Men's 440 and 880, started fresh in each event and had little difficulty in winning both.

Although in each race he bettered last year's times, Campbell could change his method of turning at the end of each length.

His distinct pause at the commencement of a new length makes him lose two-fifths or possibly four-fifths of a second on each turn. This reduction in a half mile event would make a tremendous difference in his full time.

An interested spectator at the finals last Saturday night was "Bertie" Rasmussen, who, although a resident of Canton is a member of the Y.M.C.A., and plays water polo for them whenever in the Colony.

Rasmussen's speed over the 50 and 100 Yards is already known and his non-entry into the championships was a great surprise.

He is almost, if not, faster than Donn over both these distances and would have made a fine race of it had he entered.

Eric Raitton and W. F. Kerr, two old timers of the Kowloon Swimming Club and both leading lights in Y.M.C.A. swimming, also caused disappointment by not entering.

Kerr's swimming needs no introduction as he has been seen against the best in the Colony in previous years.

Raitton's Misfortune

Raitton, who swam a sensational race in the last Y.M.C.A. gala to snatch a brilliant victory from H. Lange in the Men's 100 Yards Handicap, was expected to enter for the same distance in the championships, but his many duties in connection with the championships unfortunately prevented him from doing so.

Wan Kwong-ling of the Chinese Bathing Club, who was formerly the Colony's Breast Stroke champion until Kwok's arrival, was an interested spectator on Friday night when Kwok attacked the British record.

Wan held the record for three years when the event formed part of the championships held under the auspices of the V.R.C. but he has now passed his prime and has turned from swimming to officiating.

Chan Sock-hon, of the Chinese Bathing Club, who is easily one of the finest divers in the Colony, was another of those unfortunate ones who were away from the Colony when the entry lists closed.

He entered the Chinese Bathing Club's invitation diving contest recently and was placed third, though he should have won the event.

He is one of the few Chinese in the Colony who has perfected the approach and take off from diving in all positions. He displayed excellent form and was not only a competent diver but was also a fast swimmer when he left the water.

the board.
Chan Fook-sing of the Chinese Civil Servants' Swimming Club performed extraordinarily well to take second places in both the Men's 50 and 200 Yards Breast Stroke events.

In the latter event he fully extended Kwok and was probably responsible for the new Colony record.

His effort in the 50 Yards when he beat Donn for second place was also a worthy one.

Leung's Weakness

Leung Wai-sang, of South China, who entered both the 50 and 100 Yards, but who was placed in only the 50, has that bad habit of only being back in sprint races, which is fatal to any entrant, as it loses him invaluable fractions which all count in sprint distances.

Cheung Ping-yun of the Chinese Civil Servants' Swimming Club sprang the biggest surprise on the final night when he took the Diving championship from Morrison of the Y.M.C.A. by one point.

Morgan who was expected to be a serious contender performed poorly, and never at any stage revealed his best capabilities.

Mrs. A. C. Schreuder of the Y.M.C.A. is to be congratulated on bringing off the treble, although she was not seriously challenged in the events she won, with the exception of the 50 Yards in which she beat Miss Young Sau-king by a touch.

Mrs. Schreuder can yet improve her speed if she remedies her stiff arm stroke. If she could only bend her arms at the elbows and bring them over to her front in the shortest possible manner she would clip at least two seconds off her time in the 50 Yards and about four in the 100 Yards.

At present there is no European lady in the Colony that can really offer a serious challenge to Mrs. Schreuder.

Young Sisters' Success

The sisters Misses Young Sau-king, well-known Chinese lady champion, and Young Sau-chun, each secured a victory in the Ladies' championships. The former carried off the quarter mile easily, while the latter won the 100 Yards Back Stroke without much opposition from Miss Leung Wing-han of South China, who was favourite.

The eclipse of the Chinese Ladies' in the 200 Yards relay was one of the biggest sensations of the championships.

South China, who had the sisters Miss Young Sau-king and Young Sau-chun, Miss Leung Wing-han, Miss Yuen Pui-cheong, who won the Canton Lady swimming championships recently, were rated as the best team.

The Y.M.C.A. however, performed splendidly to bring off a "double" which their men members helped to fulfill.

The Chinese Clubs by displaying the cream of their talent have given a possible indication of future prospects.

The Chinese Bathing Club, without Leung Shui-man to lead them, will not be very prominent next year, unless Wong Yat-hung and Tsang Ho-fook make surprising strides.

South China with their sang Cheong Wing-kwong, Cheong-nok, Wong Suen-man and Kwok Chun-hang will probably be next year's champion club.

The Chinese Civil Servants' Club, who have had to rely upon Chan Fook-sing and Cheung Ping-yun in the championships, this year have many newcomers who will feature in next year's championships.

Campbell may be lost

The European Y.M.C.A. will probably be without the services of W. T. Campbell, their quarter and half mile champion, as the South Wales Borderers are leaving for India at the end of the year.

Campbell may on the other hand be seen in action next year as I hear he is attempting to secure employment in the Colony.

Appoy and Woods, who have made a welcome appearance for the Y.M.C.A., will be in the running next year and should be serious contenders in the sprint events.

Lange is steadily improving and may possibly take Campbell's place next year in the middle distance events. He possesses the best style at the Y.M.C.A.

The championships have played on this day and doubt and the Association have a new champion who will only be beaten by the likes of the old champion who will probably set up inter-records.

"Did you ever hear of an emerald known as the Eye of Osiris?" inquired Hargraves.

"Of course," Foster gestured a trifle impatiently. "Found at Abydos in 1859, by Ismail, first Khedive of Egypt. A very beautiful gem. Prince Ali owns it now."

"Did own it," corrected Hargraves, with a smile. "I've just bought it, you see," he added, as a puzzled frown came over Foster's round face.

"Oh yes! Yes, I remember now. Foster's face cleared. "Heard Prince Ali was selling his collection. So you're the lucky man?"

"I only represent an English jewelry firm," Hargraves hastened to explain. "And as a matter of fact, Durstine will probably own it before long."

At this, Foster looked quickly at Durstine. Durstine looked steadily back.

The one looked too quickly; the other too steadily. Mental suggestion is a queer thing; but in that brief, fleeting exchange of stares, something passed between the two men. Durstine now knew what lay behind Foster's talk.

Foster likewise knew that Durstine was not the man he claimed to be. And Hargraves, watching closely, saw the understanding that passed between the other two.

"Yes," said Durstine, carelessly, "I am negotiating to buy the Eye of Osiris for Jacquard's."

"Jacquard's, eh?" Foster grunted abruptly. "I know them. Paris firm. Too bad, too bad! My life is that all such things should be left in Egypt. In museums."

He turned to Hargraves. "Is the gem as beautiful as is claimed?"

"More so, if anything. Would you like to see it?"

"Very much, indeed! It has an interesting history. Tell me about it, when I see the stone."

"We'll finish our coffee first," said Hargraves, and the subject was dropped.

For some little time Durstine smothered in silence while the other two talked. His bearded face had undergone no change, and he appeared to be listening to the conversation as a matter of fact, he was thinking swiftly and desperately for a way out of the trap in which he had suddenly been caught.

Durstine had adroitly set the trap. Hargraves—the fool!—had pushed him into it.

Durstine looked at his watch: nearly two hours until train time. Flight, therefore, was out of the question. There remained two alternatives.

Durstine drew pen and paper from his pocket and prepared one of the two. "Excuse me, messieurs," he apologized. "I wish to make a memorandum before it slips my mind."

Durstine wrote briefly, returning the paper to his pocket. Shortly afterwards, the three men finished their coffee and rose.

"You two go on into the lounge," suggested Hargraves, "while I get the stone."

As Hargraves turned away, Durstine slipped a piece of paper into his hand. Hargraves waited till he reached the cashier's window before reading it.

"I think this man is an impostor, perhaps a thief. Suggest you leave him alone."

"Not much danger of that memorandum slipping your mind," he thought, and smiled grimly to himself as he took the velvet pouch from the cashier.

Durstine had but one alternative now. The three men had the double to themselves, for the evening was warm and the other guests had sought the cool terrace. Durstine and Foster had seated themselves near his open door, which gave on to the terrace a few feet below.

He entered the room, with the pouch clutched in his hand. Hargraves saw Durstine stiffen slightly. "The honours are yours," he said. "After all, you've as good as the owner of the thing now."

Durstine accepted the pouch with a polite murmur. He appeared his usual drops of perspiration standing out on his forehead indicated his terrible inner tension.

With hesitation, he slipped the case out of the pouch.

At this moment, Hargraves chose to offer a cigar to Foster, and to follow it up with a lighted match.

"There, monster," announced Durstine, very quietly.
